Cost explanation

Investment service costs

Ongoing costs

Ongoing service costs are incurred over a period and are not related to a specific transaction. Ongoing costs are charged by the investment provider for their services to the client.

Transaction costs

Transaction costs are costs related to buy/sell transactions performed by the investment provider or on behalf of the client.
Examples: commission, stamp duties, transactions taxes and foreign exchange costs.

Incidental costs

Incidental costs are costs that are not covered through in the ongoing costs or driven by transaction costs but rather charged as one-off events.
Examples: performance fees

Ancillary costs

Ancillary costs are costs related to ancillary services that are not included in the cost types mentioned above.
Examples: research costs

One-off costs

One-off costs are costs paid to the investment firm at the beginning or at the end of the provided investment service(s).
Examples: one-time advisory fees, transfer fees, deposit fees.

Financial instrument costs

Ongoing costs

Ongoing instrument costs are related to the management of a financial product that are deducted from the value of the instrument during the investment.These include direct financing charges which will affect the cash balance of the instruments portfolio.
Examples: management fees, service costs, swap fees, securities lending costs and taxes, financing costs.

Transaction costs

Transaction costs are costs as the result of the acquisition and disposal of investments.
Examples: broker commissions, entry- and exit-charges charged by a fund, mark-ups embedded in the transaction price, stamp duty, transactions taxes and foreign exchange costs.

Cost explanation

Incidental costs

Some financial instruments may involve additional incidental costs that are incidental to the investment in the financial instrument.
Examples: performance fees

One-off costs

One-off costs are all costs and charges included in the price of the financial instrument at the beginning or at the end of the investment in the financial instrument.

Thirdparty payment cost

Third-party payments are payments from an issuer or company associated with the financial product to the distributor or intermediary servicing the client. Third-party payments are implicit through other costs, such as the 'ongoing charges' of products and not charged directly to the client.
Examples: retrocession for Mutual Funds, revenue sharing for intermediaries.
